February 2017
Mission Statement

The Society of Petroleum Resources Economists (SPRE) is the first professional international organization specifically dedicated to the business side of the industry a.k.a. "Petroleum Economics" and our current focus is on Exploration & Production.

Countless professional organizations dedicated to various technical aspects of the industry do exist. Now, if you have been searching, as we have, for a professional organization dedicated to the economic, financial and financial markets side of the Oil and Gas industry, this is it and we welcome you.

Our vision? More efficiently linking economics, finance, financial markets with oil and gas exploration and production to achieve better integrated teams along the entire value chain as well as to attain superior stakeholder results and shareholder return maximization for the benefit of all.

Our purpose it is to develop and maintain standards for the profession of Petroleum Resources Economist through knowledge sharing, training and best practice dissemination.
Executive Board of Directors
